

August signals the end of vacations and time for the kids to head back to school. For parents, that might mean reassessing their current housing situation. Many people turn to online real estate sites like Zillow or Trulia for information. Often people turn to these sites to begin a home search to narrow down preferences and locations. However, like anything else on the internet, the information may be wrong or even outdated. If you want to decrease frustration, personal service from a Realtor like Janice Busovne, is the best answer. Janice can help you narrow down your choices, show you the property, help with financing options, and then guide you through the negotiation process. And that makes home buying much more enjoyable.

Summer's End

 No flowers to plant,
 No garden to tend,
 As summertime lazily
 Comes to an end.
